

Meeting places and environments for exchange – ophelis docks

Within office landscapes, more emphasis is placed on the creation of islands that promote informal communication and exchange, facilitate team meetings and create opportunities for retreat. ophelis docks is a modular product concept that opens up a variety of possibilities. docks is a modular system for the individual design of office islands. These combined furniture units serve as a meeting place that also offer retreat and promote alternative work positions. Upholstered modules, shielding, boards and tables at lounge, sitting or standing height can be combined into landscapes that serve different uses. The basic unit of the upholstered modules is the 90 x 90-cm square, or elements with a 60-cm depth. Additional benefits include the Bricks modules for storage space and electricity supply, as well as the add-on panel, which allows the incorporation of system accessories.

It is also possible to sit on the backrest of the 90 module. The system is supplemented by a new corner screen, which shields the seating area. The laptopable floor can be moved to any position. The new large table top offers space for a laptop and writing utensils.

A large textile collection and different pedestal variants – whether in steel or wood – offer an array of different possibilities for individual expression.
